1. Re-read Acts 3:1-10. What stands out to you about this interaction? What is surprising?
2. Where in your life do you experience or witness the need for healing?
3. How do we often try to alleviate pain or try to bring "healing" with quick fixes or "placebos" that help for a while, but don't truly heal us in the long run?
4. What kind of healing does our future hold? What's the 'healing beyond the grave' this passage talks about?
5. In what way is the church called to be a "healing community?" What role could you play in that?
6. Where do you see pain in the lives of those around you that God might be inviting you to be a participant in his healing them?
